

THIS RAID WOULD PUZZLE ANY COURT

Kelleher Got Something From Friend's Safe, but Even Prosecutor Can't See Any Evidence.

Six men of the Special Service Squad Division, with Policeman Harrington in charge, yesterday went to No. 420 Amsterdam Avenue, formerly a saloon owned by Emil Moulton. Their warrant called especially for a search of a safe. They found no liquor and Moulton wasn't in, so they couldn't get into the safe.

Daniel Kelleher, a friend of Moulton, got the safe combination from Moulton by telephone and opening the iron box brought forth a decanter with about a drink of something in it. The cops arrested Kelleher for having whiskey in his possession.

"Where is the whiskey?" asked Assistant District Attorney Richard Gibbs in the West Side Court today.

"I don't know," returned Harrington. "One of my men has it."

Magistrate Silberman held Kelleher for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail. Why, your Honor, said the Assistant District Attorney, there is no evidence here to show that this man had any whiskey in his possession; and there is no evidence to show that there was any whiskey in the safe or in the saloon. "Where is the whiskey?" asked the Grand Jury. "It is no wonder that the Grand Jury turned him out," said the Assistant District Attorney, "because when cases are sent to them on such flimsy evidence as this."

SAYS SHE POURED
HOT WATER ON HIM

Policeman Scalded, He Charges, by Woman Because He Asked Questions About Theft.

Detective Charles Hemminger of the 12th branch Detective Bureau entered the clothing store of Joseph Secker at No. 126 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, today, to question Secker in connection with alleged shirtwaist thefts in the neighborhood. Mrs. Secker came from the back room and asked what he was doing.

The detective said that he showed his shield, whereupon the woman went into the back room again, quickly emerging with the kettle of hot water, which she says she threw over his face and head, scalding him on the right side. The woman followed her first attack by a fusillade of pots and pans, Hemminger said. He blew his whistle and four detectives ran to his aid. Secker and his wife were arrested, and held in $500 bail.

BUILDING MENACED
BY HORDES OF ANTS

Destructive Pests Said to Have Come to Kansas From South America.

WICHITA, Kan., June 8.—Hordes
of ants, driving upward from the earth through mud tubes, are threatening destruction to the Biakon Exchange Building at the stockyards here. Oakum lumber stored under the building has been practically consumed and the ants have driven their way up along pipe lines to the woodwork of the west end of the structure, which they have tunneled as far as the second floor.

for Long Trip Stops Suddenly.
The distance between his home, at No.

3227 Van Cortlandt Avenue, adjacent to Van Cortlandt Park, and his post of duty in Greenpoint, Brooklyn, is so great that Policeman Michael Dowd had to buy a flier to negotiate it between his tours of duty.
He was on his way home, driving his own car, after coming off post to-day,
when, at Orient and Morgan Avenues, Greenpoint, the emergency brake suddenly set itself and the car stopped.
Dowd was thrown against the wheel and three of his ribs were fractured. He is
